

Proposed Water Tower Sparks Neighborhood Protest

Petitions signed by more than 120 residents of the Carriage Crossing subdivision and those who regularly use its park ask Troy City Council to deny funding for a water tower anywhere in that park and to search for an alternative location.

The petitions were presented Monday, Aug. 17, to city council by Carriage Crossing resident Katie DeLand. She attended council's meeting along with several other residents in the subdivision located north West Main Street and east of Washington Road.

The neighbors met Aug. 13, with the councilman for that area of the city, Brock Heath, to discuss the tower location process.

The possible location of a 200-foot tower in the subdivision park first became known to residents when the city Park Board was asked to support a park site for the tower during its Aug. 4 meeting. Jill Rhoades, city engineer, discussed the tower location process with the board, saying several sites were analyzed for the city's west side with the focus narrowed to the Carriage Crossing Park and a site south of the Kings Chapel area. The city owns the park, but would have to buy the other property, the park board was told. DeLand said residents were "upset and concerned for a number of reasons" on hearing the park, which she said is heavily used for pee-wee football and other activities, was being considered for a large tower.

While upset, residents have decided to "come at this with logic," focusing on environmental and recreational concerns, she said.

The city has scheduled a meeting for Sept. 2, tentatively set for Concord Elementary School, to discuss the tower process and answer residents' questions.

Civil War Music At Mayor's Concert

By Brittany Arlene Jackson

Lincoln and Liberty, the 23rd annual Troy Mayors' Concert with the Dayton Philharmonic Concert Band and Festival Chorus, highlighted music of the Civil War Era. Guest soloists included baritone Errik Hood and local vocalist, mezzo-soprano Rachael Boezi. An estimated audience of 1,000 people came out for the performance which began at 7:00 PM on the square. Concert-goers watched the sun set behind the Mayflower while listening to patriotic standards like "Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa and "American Salute" by Gould.

Conductor Patrick Reynolds was nostalgic about this year's concert. "There are not many cities that still support -I'm just going to call it- an old fashioned performance like this," Reynolds said. "It is an honor to be a part of such a beautiful tradition." Dave Pinkerton and Mayor Mike Beamish were guest conductors at the event. According to Mayor Beamish, the pressure of this year's performance was more intense than usual. Not only were former mayor, Pete Jenkins, and his wife in the audience but Mayor Beamish's brother-in-law, John Finney was in attendance. Finney is the conductor of the Boston College Orchestra and Ensemble. According to Beamish, his brother-in-law has performed in front of the Pope on two occasions. "He's even letting me borrow his baton tonight," Beamish said. "I just hope I don't fall off the stage."

According to Conductor Reynolds, Mayor

meeting would like to see topographical maps of the city and receive more information on comments about water pressure needs in the northwest area of the city, DeLand said.

Among the biggest concerns of the neighborhood, she said, are:

- Where is the smartest place to put this water tower?
- Are there plans to modify the existing detention basin and retention pond?

- Will this tower service the Carriage Crossing subdivision?
- What land owners were approached, when and what prices were negotiated and are they being approached again?

- Why does this tower need to be so tall in relation to capacity?
- What is the plan to accommodate existing green space, which DeLand said is all in use today, for activities?

"We look forward to working with you on this," DeLand told council.

Council also heard from Carriage Crossing resident Chuck Adams, who said residents were caught by surprise to hear about the water tower possibly going into the park. He said he wanted to emphasize that more

Festival of Nations Tradition Continues

By Brittany Arlene Jackson

The Festival of Nations hosted its 18th annual celebration from 2 PM to 8 PM on the levy on Saturday, August 15th. The tradition began under the administration of Mayor Jenkins back in 1997 and continues as Mayor Beamish and the Mayor's International Council help bring together and highlight the extensive diversity represented in Troy, Ohio. Twenty nations shared the sights, sounds, textures, and flavors of their culture, with China being this year's featured country.

this year. "I never knew we had so much of the world right here in our backyard," Kirk said. Countries like Egypt offered a hibiscus drink they call "the nectar of the gods." Japan had toys and games for children. China gave lessons in the use of chopsticks. France had candies offered by a little girl in traditional French dress. Cultural dances and music were performed by volunteers from Argentina, Scotland, Peru, Egypt, South Africa, and Puerto Rico. All the booths had displays, maps, and information on their country.

At the festival, May-

Firefighters Reject Memo of Understanding

By Nancy Bowman

Troy firefighters voted to reject a proposed memorandum of understanding (MOU) on staffing because it included adding part-time firefighter/EMTs or paramedics, union President Josh Havenar told City Council at its Monday, Aug. 17, meeting.

"A motion was made to basically stop the part-time stuff before it started," Havenar said.

His remarks followed a memo sent Friday, Aug. 14, to council members by Patrick Titterington, city service and safety director.

In the memo, Titterington said administrators had decided to maintain status quo staffing at the fire department after the union notified them it had rejected a proposed MOU put together following several meetings between the city and union.

Those meetings were held after the city received a report on department staffing and operations from The Novak Consulting Group in May. The study was commissioned after firefighters last year opposed an ordinance to allow hiring of two part-time firefighters as part of a trial of adding part-time help to enhance department staffing.

That opposition led to firefighters leading a referendum drive and obtaining the signatures to challenge the 2014 ordinance in a referendum that will go before city voters in November.

The Novak study concluded today's staffing levels are sufficient to provide EMS and fire protection. The consultants also said the most cost effective way to increase shift staffing would be adding part-time firefighters to current full-time employees.

In the memo Titterington wrote, "The draft MOU, in our opinion, addressed all of their concerns, provided them with additional full-time promoted staff, and introduced the part-time staffing concept as a supplement to and not a replacement of full-time TFD staffing."

Titterington said he and Mayor Mike Beamish are "confident" that with Novak's findings, the city can continue to provide "excellent EMS and fire protection" to the city.

"It's regrettable that we couldn't come to an agreement on this MOU as it would have cost effectively improved service to the city," he said.

Titterington also included in the correspondence to council a copy of Havenar's letter to him regarding the union vote.

"It is important to note that, contrary to what was implied in the letter, the union membership as a whole did not vote on this offer but, rather, a minority of the membership who were present took a voice

He said he wanted to know why his wife was being stopped, and explained that she was not trying to flee the deputies. The reason for the stop was explained several times. The male subject was advised that the roadway was not the place to argue the citation. The deputy explained that she could argue her traffic offense in court. He further explained that he had video of her traffic offense. The video showed the driver rolling through a stop sign and showed her failing to stop immediately after the deputy activated his overhead lights. It also showed the driver, the male subject and another subject interfering with the traffic stop and their obstruction of the deputy's official lawful duties. The male subject laid down in the road and said "Oh, black lives don't matter." Another male subject was attempting to provoke a confrontation by removing his shirt, acting hostile and aggressive and calling the deputies names and making threats of violence toward them. Both male subjects and a female subject were charged with obstructing official business.

He was advised that there are several signs stating that the area was private property. He finally admitted that he lied and that he was fishing in the gravel pit. He was cited for criminal trespassing.

10:30 p.m. – While patrolling the Miami County Fairgrounds, two deputies heard yelling near the rabbit barn. Two male subjects were yelling at each other and pointing in each other's faces. One of the subjects walked away when deputies approached, but the other subject reported that he was a retired Fair Board member and was helping at the fair because the other subject, a new Fair Board member, hadn't been to the fair to help with anything. He said that the new member did not like the fact that he was there and an argument ensued. At midnight, at shift change, one of the deputies was summoned to the secretary's building to discuss the issue further. At the secretary's building were the Fair Board President, Vice President and Secretary. The three advised that the new member had taken his authority too far and confronted a 4-H student for removing his animal from the fairgrounds. The student's mother was upset that the new member was "in her face." She stated that the new member said "If I wasn't on my night meds, I'd have my CCW and I'd a popped someone." The fair officials requested that the new member be trespassing from the fairgrounds.

Local Manuscript Added to New Works Festival

Some Self-Evident Truths is a manuscript of two diaries written in the 1940s by women who grew up in the same small town, Troy, Ohio. The diaries are compiled together date by date as the relationship between these two women grew. One woman, Lois Davies, is a white woman, a mother of three and very active in her community. The other woman is Lucille Wheat, a black woman and mother of six, also very active in the community. The women graduated from the same high school but knew very little of one another because of the social separateness of the times. As the story progresses, the women begin to build a relationship through their work with various civic organizations but grow a deeper more meaningful relationship when they both come to realize that segregation has cost each of them so very much. The manuscript was was included in their New Works Festival at the Caryl D. Philips Creativity Center with Torie Wiggins as Mrs. Wheat and Terrilynn Meece as Mrs. Davies. Although tickets for this presentation sold out at once, Rev. Carolyn Moore of Dayton and Matthew Davies of Columbus, daughter and son of Wheat and Davies, were able to be in attendance.

Interest in the history of Troy, Ohio will uncover information about Lois Davies as an historian and newspaper columnist and Lucille Wheat as an honored social activist. "It is with great pride that we now explore these precious diary entries again in the light of our current times, as we move forward with the idea of a full professional production in mind. This story inspires such passion and such compassion that we wanted to bring it out again and give it new life. It is a compelling story that deserves compiled in 1980 and was performed as reader's theatre in NYC at the SoHo Artists Theatre and also later in the Catskills. Recently, the Troy-Hayner Cultural Center brought the manuscript to the attention of the Human Race Theatre Company in Dayton. Scott Stoney, one of the founders of the HRTC and a professional director and scriptwriter, found himself enamored with the story and spent countless hours pouring over the script, editing and honing it. On August 8, 2015 a 20-minute excerpt to be heard", says Hayner Program Coordinator Terrilynn Meece. "We look forward to developing new opportunities for Some Self-Evident Truths."

The Troy-Hayner Cultural Center is proudly supported by the citizens of the Troy City School District through a local tax levy and generous gifts to the Friends of Hayner. than 100 people showed up for the neighborhood meeting with Heath.

Adams said other concerns would be shared at the Sept. 2 public information meeting. He asked council to review the pros and cons of sites outlined in the city's consultant's report. We'd like for you to review those extensively and ask yourself if this water tower, which is almost 200 feet high, belongs in a neighborhood park anywhere in Troy," Adams said.

Resident Deb Billheimer said she was concerned that property values would go down with the tower in the park.

Patrick Titterington, city service-safety director, said city staff intends to answer all questions asked at the Sept. 2 meeting. The consulting engineer on the project also will be on hand with maps and technical details, he said.

Rotary Hosts New Troy HS Basketball Coach

A true retirement is somewhere in the future for Paul Bremigan (pictured), new head coach of the Troy High School basketball team. Bringing years of coaching experience to town, Bremigan was head coach for Russia, Ohio teams for more than three decades prior to retiring from that school district earlier this year. He shared his plans for the upcoming season with Troy Rotary Club members during their weekly meeting on August 11, 2015.

A large part of Bremigan's job will be recruit-with an emphasis on having a strong defense. Bremigan believes he can build a competitive team that will help create enthusiasm for the program from both the players and the fans. The regular basketball season runs from November 2015 through early February 2016. The first tipoff will be on Saturday, November 28 at 7:30 PM at Troy High School and be against Memorial (St. Marys, Ohio). For more information, visit www.troy.k12.oh.us/athletics.aspx.

With that in mind, he has hosted multiple "open gyms" at which he's had contact with over 50 potential players. His scouting efforts will continue as school begins and will include attendance at football games. Some of the traits he looks for in young men are those who will play hard and play to win. His game plan for the season includes both man-to-man and zone, develop a larger audience. It's a really great time to get together and celebrate our city's cultural diversity." With extensive planning throughout the year, Grant Kerber and the Mayor's Youth Council participated in helping to generate ideas for the event alongside the steering committee led by Ruth Jenkins and Brock and Leyla Heath. According to Mayor Beamish, each cultural group is asked to include food, education, customs, and clothing in their presentations at the Festival. "It's like the Strawberry Festival in that a lot of planning goes into making this happen," Beamish said. The International Council meets monthly in preparation for this event.

Michael Ham was the emcee and organizer of the acts on the main stage at the festival this year.

He helped to bring in special groups like Steel Expressions and Madame Gigi's Outrageous Cancan Dancers. His view of the festival's importance is underscored by his perspective of Troy's responsibility as a leader in Miami County. "I've always felt that Troy has an important role in promoting cultural diversity because we are the county seat and a regional hub," Ham said. "When you see all these cultures come together, you're seeing the great depth that our community has to offer."

The Festival of Nations is funded exclusively through donations and support from groups like the Troy Foundation and the Troy Area Chamber of Commerce. For a complete list of the represented countries and more information about the festival visit troyfestivalofnations.com.

Grace D. Kindelin

Grace D. Kindelin, age 81, of Troy, passed away on Thursday, August 13, 2015 at Upper Valley Medical Center in Troy. She was born on June 17, 1934 in Chicago, IL to the late Harry and Jeannette (Dunston) Spannenberg. Her husband, John Thomas Kindelin, preceded her in death on January 17, 1976.

Family and faith were everything to Grace. Her 3 boys that she was so proud of made up her world. Grace's sons married such loving ladies, giving the family 9 grandchildren. Her devotion to her children and grandchildren was always a part of her daily life. Never a day passed that she would not mention them. Her positive encouragement during good times and bad would always be the thought of the day. Her gift of love was infectious to anyone that was around her. Her "Graciesms" were always priceless and will be forever cherished in their lives.

When she wasn't working, scrapbooking or marathon-watching CSI, Bunco and Bridge games would rule the day. Her circle of friends over the years established a "cartel" of ladies gathering several times a year to play cards together. The Senior Center gang and her church lunch buddies were always a treat. Her friends were many and gave her lifelong relationships.

Amazing Grace--Mom, Grandma and friend. Grace will be deeply missed and forever loved.

Grace is survived by three sons and spouses: Mark and Gwen Kindelin of Chicago, IL, Joe and Alicia Kindelin of Glendale, AZ and Patrick and Lisa Kindelin of Sidney, OH; and grandchildren: Andrew Kindelin, Mike Kindelin, Tessa Kindelin; Megan (Richard) Loy and Adam Kindelin; John Kindelin, Maria (Santiago) Perez, Lydia (Devon) Latimer and Luke Kindelin.

Mayor's Concert

Continued from Page 1 Beamish demonstrated skill commensurate with his twelve years of experience wielding the baton for the Mayors' Concert. "A lot of times when you have honorary conductors, they're not very good," Reynolds said. "When Mayor Jenkins would get up there, he was all show; Michael actually knows how to conduct."

The final highlight of the evening was the traditional performance of Overture 1812 by Tchaikovsky, punctuated by cannon blasts. Rick Helwig and the 5th Ohio Light Artillery provided electrical cannons on a trailer in an empty parking lot near Prouty Plaza. "When I fire my Civil War cannons, we run 8 or 9 ounces of gun powder per round," Helwig said. "We're firing 7 ounce rounds here. So, they're almost as big a round as what we use for re-enactments." The remote-controlled cannons were cued in time with the score for twelve blasts toward the end of performance.

The Mayors' Concert was dedicated to the civic legacy of Troy's mayors, totaling 40 in all. From Charles Morris in 1853 to Michael Beamish in 2015, the history and heritage lives on.

Rotary Helps Sponsor "Back to School Bash"

Looking good and being prepared to learn helps any child head back to school feeling confident and ready to succeed. It's this philosophy that pervaded Lincoln Community Center, 110 Ash Street in Troy, on Sunday, August 16 as the staff and local sponsors offered the third annual "Back to School Bash" for Troy area students. A total of 172 school-aged children enjoyed the fun filled afternoon, getting haircuts, collecting school supplies and celebrating the end of summer together before heading to class on August 19th.

Along with Rotary, the event is supported by Omega Psi Phi - Xi Iota Iota Chapter, Family Abuse Shelter of Miami County, Troy-Miami County Public Library and Trojan Insurance Agency in Troy. "All our sponsors continue to be very generous in their support of this program," said Carter. "It's with their ongoing assistance that we continue to help more and more local students be ready for school each year," he noted. To learn more about programs offered at the center, visit their Web site at www.lcctroy.com.

As they return to school, the students now have book bags, notebooks, calculators, paper, pencils, protractors, compasses, binders, index cards and tab sets supplied by Troy Rotary Club. "In the three years that we've hosted this event, we have seen the number of participants continue to grow," said Rotarian Shane Carter, executive director of Lincoln Community Center. "We are very excited that Rotary helps us get these students ready to head back to school with the supplies they will need, starting day one," he added.

Rotarians, and the Troy Rotary Foundation, support several projects each year, including a recent summer camp at Brukner Nature Center. Together, they distributed over $16,000 in scholarships, program support and community aid in 2014-15. The Troy Rotary Club is a member-involved, goal-oriented service club focused on socio/economic issues that have an impact both locally and internationally. Troy Christian CC Small In Numbers

By Jim Dabbelt

As the cross country season gets underway, Troy Christian coach Jeff McDaniel knows that numbers are slim on the Eagles roster. So slim, that while the boys' team will be able to accumulate team points in their upcoming meets, the girls team only has three runners.

"We are a really young team, we have no juniors or seniors," McDaniel said last week. "We have some good freshman runners that will do well this year. This will be their first time at running a 5K, but I think they will do well."

"We had a good summer. I do a camp every summer at Lake Hope State Park and we had 15 guys there. Half of the camp is about team building and camaradery, and we had both middle school and high school runners there this year. We run a lot."

For the girls team, McDaniel noted only three will participate this season, including freshman Sophie Pittsenbarger, who will likely be their top girls runner.

"She is very competitive," McDaniel said. "We did lose some kids to soccer and volleyball. Sophie's sister Hyla and senior Jill Ruffing will also be running for us." McDaniel also added that the two seniors will be working on their fourth year varsity letter.

On the guys side, McDaniel noted that that at least nine runners will be running for the Eagles. He thinks his top runner could be a newcomer to the program.

Freshman Isaac Flora comes in and will provide a lot of things for Troy Christian.

"He is probably our team leader, and he is a strong runner," McDaniel said. "In junior high last year, he was the leader and finished in the top five in most races. I can see him starting in the low 18s, and he should be able to get into the mid 17s later in the year."

Sophomore Zach Davidson has been training hard all summer, and McDaniel hopes he will become one of the top runners this year, as he has been working on improving his time."

Also making his debut is freshman Nick Pratt, also a good swimmer.

"This is his second year in cross country, and he is a very good swimmer," McDaniel said. "He came out last year to get in shape, plus he also had a good track season. He has been leading us in most runs this summer, he is motivated."

Three more key runners this year will be sophomores Nick Flannery, Noah Davidson and Caleb Hunniutt.

"That will be our scoring team," McDaniel said.

"We don't have a real good group of pack runners, but I think Nick and Isaac will be close together. The rest of the guys will be spread throughout the pack."

"We are going to have a lot of fun," the coach said. "I think a couple of them could make it to regionals, but we should finish in the middle of most races. We have some good competition in the league, with the top three team being us, Xenia Christian and Emmanuel Christian."

Firefighters Reject Memorandum

vote at their July 15, 2015 union meeting," Titterington wrote. "It is our understanding that the majority of the membership did not receive a copy of the draft MOU and, further, no opportunity for a confidential ballot vote was provided to them."

Havenar said 20 of 34 union members were present for a voice vote, 12 copies of the proposed MOU were distributed among attendees and all 20 voted to reject the proposal.

Titterington's letter "kind of painted us in a bad light," Havenar said, adding he thought it also put him in a bad light.

He further told council that firefighter discussed the proposed MOU with the union's lawyer before the vote.

"He basically said we were crazy if we signed that MOU or any other MOU," Havenar said, adding the advice was MOUs don't hold any weight.

Havenar also pointed out firefighters wanted voters to decide the issue of hiring part time personnel in the referendum and would be willing to move forward with more discussions on changes involving full time staffing.

Titterington provided City Council Aug. 14 the following outline of the MOU as proposed (Information underline as emphasized by city):

1) Increased the uniformed TFD complement by 3 full-time positions, from 38 to 41 full-time employees, by creating a new promoted position of lieutenant (one for each shift), within six months of signing the MOU;

2) Created a steering committee by the chief, which would include at least two Local 1638 members (as chosen by Local 1638 membership or leadership), again within the first six months. Any additional members would be appointed by the chief. That committee would be responsible for submitting proposed regulations, protocols, and procedures related to the screening, hiring, scheduling, equipping, and monitoring of part-time employees;

3) Created a pool of part-time candidates, trained as either EMTs or Paramedics, and assign one part-time EMT or Paramedic to each shift, within the second six months. Then, within the third six months of the signing, the chief would assign a second part-time EMT or Paramedic to each shift;

4) Maintained a minimum of eight full-time Paramedics on duty on each shift, even if it would require overtime, at all times;

5) Prohibited, in the event that city finances require changes to the personnel complement at the TFD, any full-time union employee from being laid off, or any full-time position from being left vacant and unfilled among the 41 full-time positions established by the MOU, until all part-time employees are laid off;

6) Downgraded the vacant Assistant Chief to a Platoon Commander/Captain, thus adding to the complement of union employees and creating a dedicated scheduling, training, and administrative position to ensure the success of the part-time program and further improve the coordination of the TFD training regimen;

7) Required part time staff to be subject to the same hiring and certification standards as full-time union employees, including but not limited to background, demographic, physical agility, medical and psychological screenings; and,

8) Required the city to request that the Troy Civil Service Commission amends its rules to allow part-time employees in good standing with the TFD to earn supplemental service credits towards their score on a full-time Firefighter/Paramedic hiring list.

Job Changes Bring New Retirement Plan Opportunities

Old employer sponsored accounts can be rolled over into a single account for ease of use

The U.S. Department of Labor reports that baby boomers born between 1957 and 1964 held an average of 11 jobs from age 18 to age 44. That kind of job mobility has the potential to greatly complicate the task of managing your retirement assets.

Managing multiple retirement accounts from former employers can be burdensome. Costs associated with these retirement plans can add up, statements can be confusing and time spent managing each account can often be better spent elsewhere. Consolidating retirement accounts from former employers into one Individual Retirement Account (IRA) can possibly help you save you time and money; and perhaps your sanity. Plus, depending on the provider you choose, many IRAs could offer improved diversification, flexibility, guidance and service.

The below information from Thrivent Financial highlights four potential benefits in rolling tax-qualified retirement savings over to an IRA.

Make it easy on yourself to manage your retirement investments. Consolidating multiple tax-qualified workplace retirement accounts into a single IRA might make it easier for you to manage your retirement assets. Instead of piecing together multiple statements to find your overall investment performance and balance, just one statement does the trick. It can also simplify things for survivors in case of your death; ensuring survivors have the fewest complications when managing finances left behind.

Benefit from continued income tax deferral on your retirement accounts. In most situations, should you meet a distribution event under your old employer's retirement plan (leaving that employer to take another job is a typical trigger event) you can transfer or rollover your investment assets under that plan to either another employer sponsored qualified plan or an IRA without triggering income taxes.

Continuing tax deferral on your retirement investments means, allowing for market ups and downs, you can keep more dollars working longer for you.

Personalize your retirement savings program with increased investment options. Depending on the organization or company you choose, rolling over to an IRA may offer you more investment options than your previous employer retirement plan does. More options may help you better diversify your investments and can help meet retirement goals in accordance with your personal tolerance for investment risk, though it won't eliminate the risk. Rolling over your old employer's retirement plan to an IRA may be an option every time you leave a job allowing you to evaluate your progress toward meeting your retirement goals and, if necessary, make an required course corrections.

Simplify the calculation of your required minimum distributions (RMDs). Required minimum distributions (RMDs)—the minimum amounts that a retirement account owner must withdraw annually starting with the year that he or she reaches age 70-1/2 or, if later, the year in which he or she retires—must be calculated based on all your tax-qualified retirement accounts. Consolidating retirement accounts by rolling them over into one IRA simplifies the calculation of a required minimum distribution.

A rollover into an IRA can be a helpful tool in retirement planning; however, there are other factors you should consider before rolling over old retirement plans, including investment performance and the fees and expenses charged by your old plan versus those charged by the IRA provider. A financial professional can help you evaluate whether rolling over old retirement plans into an IRA is a good move for you.

You can find more information at www.thrivent.com/IRA.

Staunton Trustees Review Bid for Tile Repair

By Bonnie L. McHenry

At the August 17, 2015 meeting of the Staunton Township trustees, the trustees reviewed a bid from Miami Ag Drainage to repair and replace a tile at the Sayers Road Crossing. In addition, to the pipe replacement covered by the quote, Levi Long, Trustee, reported that another tile on Sayers has a hole in it that should be replaced at the same. The bid totaled $6365; however, if the township can coordinate the project with the 2015 Miami County Asphalt Concrete Resurfacing Program for which Sayers is scheduled the township can save $2000 in asphalt cost. However, Miami Ag Drainage indicated that they cannot get to the project until the second week of September and the Miami County Paving Program started on August 17, 2015. The trustees will seek additional bids to determine if another contractor can complete the tile replacement and repair more quickly.

In addition, the trustees passed a resolution to apply Hydro-seed to the ditch work performed on Rusk Road to prevent erosion of the soil in the ditch. Bill Gearhart, Trustee, expressed his concern. "If we don't apply grass seed to the area quickly, the soil is likely to erode with the next rain and cause clogged culverts and drains further downstream."

The trustees also approved the abatement of high grass and noxious weeds on a property on SR 55. The property will be mowed on August 25, 2015 at a cost of approximately $100. In a related matter, the trustees passed a resolution to add a $25 processing fee to be placed as a tax lien against the property owner in addition to the mowing costs. The resolution applies to all future noxious weed abatement projects.

In other business, the trustees reviewed the reports from the Troy Fire Department. Staunton Township accounted for 48 out of 418 runs made by the department. The majority of the runs were for emergency medical services at 41. Staunton Township receives only 3% of the services provided for by the City of Troy.

Due to the Labor Day Holiday, the trustees moved to change their first meeting in September to Tuesday, September 8, 2015 at 7:00 p.m. in the township building.

County Approves Enterprise Zone

By Nancy Bowman

The Miami County commissioners approved an enterprise zone tax abatement agreement for expansion of a business in Troy around 50 years Aug. 11.

Jim Dando, Troy development director, told the commission Arc Abrasives currently operates in two relatively small facilities.

An expansion proposal would change that with construction of a new building to combine operations and also add equipment, he said.

The abatement request was for a $4.8 million investment in a new building and equipment by the company, a sandpaper and grinder manufacturer. The expansion from the Marybill Drive location to a new facility at 2219 Corporate Drive would add 15 jobs to the existing 99 employees, according to a memo received by Troy City Council.

The abatement is for 75 percent abatement in real and tangible personal property taxes for 10 years. The company would continue to pay other taxes, the commission was told.

The Troy schools and the Upper Valley Career Center have been notified of the request, Dando said.

Craig Mayrer of Arc Abrasives told the commissioners, "This is a great opportunity for Arc Abrasives. We hope to continue to add jobs to the local economy."

In other business last week, the commission signed an agreement with Compass Minerals America Inc. to provide rock salt for next winter at a cost of $70.01 per ton dumped. The agreement says the amount bought would not exceed 5,500 tons.

"It's much cheaper than it was last year at about $120 a ton," said county Engineer Paul Huelskamp.

He also mentioned that the Ohio Attorney General's office is moving forward with litigation with companies over the price charges for the rock salt during 2008-2010. Counties can seek payment from a settlement for overcharges during that time. Huelskamp said he would keep commissioners informed about that effort.

In other business last week, the commissioners:

- Approved a multi-function printer equipment project contract to Woodhull LLC of Springboro for five years. The company submitted the lowest and best bid, the commissioners said.

- Approved a debt collection agreement between the Ohio Attorney General's Office and the commission on behalf of county Municipal Court. The attorney general was authorized to deduct collection costs from amounts collected on delinquent fees, fines and other costs owed to the court. There will be a 10 percent collection fee added to the amount collected from tax refunds or lottery prizes.
- Agreed to pay Alexander Sewer and Drain of Casstown to replace the sewer pump at the David L. Brown Youth Center for $1,303.

WACO Air Museum hosted the annual IH Scout Car Show. The Scout was International Harvester's response to the popularity of the Jeep. Over a half million Scouts were produced between 1960 and 1980. The show featured Scouts and other IH trucks of all types. There were also vendor booth offering scout accessories. WACO also offered biplane rides during the show.

The Miami County Fair opened last Friday and continues through the 20th. Always a big event in the area, thousands attended. We sent our photographer and allowed him free reign. If you weren't there, this is some of what you missed. We will have more photos next week.
